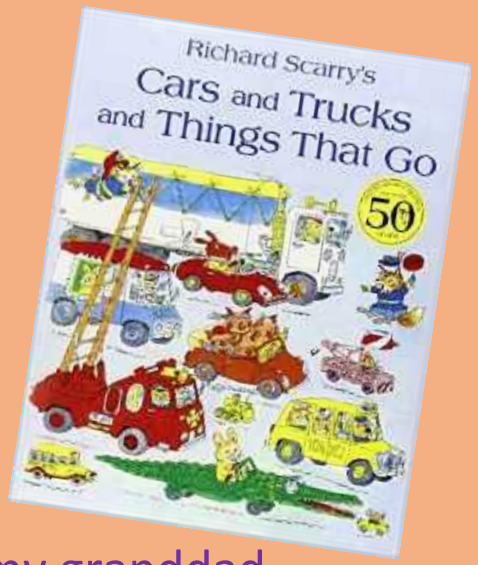
AERON TOLLETT – STUDENT LIBRARIAN



Can you remember when you learnt to read and who taught you?

I think I was first taught to read when I was 2 or 3 years old, and it was mostly my parents who taught me, but I did help myself a bit.

What were your favourite books as a young child?

My favourite book was probably 'Cars and Trucks and Things That Go' by Richard Scarry. I found it funny and loved looking at the pictures with my granddad.

What sort of reading for pleasure do you do now?

I mostly read action/adventures and thrillers these days.

What has been your favourite book over the last five years?

Probably 'The Maze Runner' by James Dashner as I found it thrilling.

What are you reading now?

'The Death Cure' by James Dashner; it's the third in the 'Maze Runner' series.

What does reading for pleasure matter to you?

I find that it helps me to wind down so I can try to go to sleep much quicker, and it really does help.
